Medication as a Form of Mental Health Treatment

Medication is one form of treatment for people who have mental health issues. It is often the most complicated, misunderstood and misused treatment. Please join the Solano County Behavioral Health's Wellness Recovery Unit as we bring you our Medical Director, Dr. Donovan Wong to discuss the importance of Medication Management. Dr. Wong will share his extensive medical knowledge of how medications work in the human body and explain why medications are so important to people with mental health issues. Our Consumer Affairs Liaison, Rachel E. Ford, will share her personal journey of finding the right medication to treat her mental health issue; and she will discuss the importance of staying on medications and taking them as they are prescribed.
